This folio not only serves as a holder for the papers, but also furnishes an opportunity to make note of corrections needed, and thns from the time the papers reach the office until the certificates are all completed and mailed they are kept together. A small card index standing on mailing desk is always a guide to the whereabouts of the papers and is divided into three sections, current, unfinished, and completed, the cards being moved to the corresponding sections at the proper time. Another feature of the work of the office during the year which has been developed in a larger manner than previously has been the preparation and circulation among the Agricultural Press of articles relating to the work of our breed. These have included several reports and comments on...
