NYDER Dr. S. So while we saw this continued drop - I mean, it is not tremendously dramatic, but a time of, as you pointed out, big increases in the amount of contracted services and a lot of activity going on with the war on terrorism and the wars in Iraq and Af-ghanistan. This chart just demonstrates that a lot of the work was being done by a contracted-out force. EEDHAM Mr. N. Right. But we didnt have, again, the numbers to know that, to be able to identify, which has been an effort of Con-gress over the recent years to get that kind of documentation down. NYDER Dr. S. I still find it surprising that the actual numbers have declined of personnel through that 2001 to 2008 period. I want to ask, I am going to ask this a little bit - I will not face-tiously, I guess. There is not much humor, it doesnt seem to me, in an acquisition hearing, so I have got to find it the best I can. But it seems to me, knowing you watch these movies about pris-oner of war (POW) camps, you know, the kind of tongue-in-cheek kind of stories, the coolest dude in the camp is always the acquisi-tion guy, is the guy who can find the radio and the phony ID and the two pounds of sausage and whatever it is the commander thinks he needs. So you guys are the coolest dudes in the camp. Now, that...
