Committee (that of foreign affairs), and they follow exactly the same course in the tribune. In the Department of War was Delacroix, Dantons friend and right hand. Of the report itself, all the last part, and possibly some paragraphs in the middle, were drawn up by Danton. Later we shall see that his preponderance was notorious and a danger to him. Well, Danton and the Committee being so nearly identical, can we make a description of the motive that urged him I think we can. He speaks continually for the defence, but he and his Committee refuse to act, and if ever he has spoken a little too strongly, has given the Girondins a little too much power, he retreats somewhat towards the Commune. He resembles a man who is opening a sluice in a dyke of the fen country: behind him is the sea; he admits and plays with its power, but unless...
