Under this clause, while the dealer would be exempt from punishment, he would have to furnish the evidence by which the guarantor who manufactured the goods could be punished. Now, in the bill proposed by the Drug Exchange for the action of the Maryland Legislature, while most elaborate provision is apparently made for punishing those who sell adulterated or misbranded drugs, foods, etc., there is at the same time a most innocent looking little proviso to the effect that the seller of such goods will be exempt from prosecution whenever he can produce a guaranty as provided by the National Law. Now, if they had not written a single other line they would get us on that one line, for the reason that it would...
