Nothing in these rooms escaped the fire. Not only was all the apparatus lost but also a large amount of experimental data. The main portion of the building was also consumed. This contained three stories, 50 feet by 150 feet. It was occupied by drawing rooms, recitation and lecture rooms, instrument rooms, offices and a mechanical museum. Some of the furniture and apparatus in these rooms was carried out before the fire took possession, but, as already stated, this part of the building was entirely burned. The only portion still standing comprises the wood room and foundry. These rooms were not damaged except by the temporary removal of the more portable portion of their equipment. The incidental losses by the fire are considerable. Members of the faculty have lost books, papers and data; students, their instruments, and manufacturers, in every part of the country, who, by gifts or liberal discounts, had cooperated in the equipment of the building, have lost their representation there. The excellent facilities for laboratory training which Purdue has been able to offer have made her engineering departments well known and have helped to draw to them a large number of students. It is hoped and expected that the new building will be quite as extensive and its equipment quite as complete as were the building and equipment which have been lost, and, since experience has suggested the modification of many details, it is but reasonable to expect the second plant...
